Brief Course Description

Multinational corporations (MNCs) play a key role in China's economy, accounting for about 16% of China's GDP and 43% of gross fixed capital formation. Virtually every large global MNC has significant operations in China, drawn to the huge potential market and significant manufacturing advantages.

This course will examine how MNCs must adapt to succeed in China. Through cases, readings, discussions, and presentations by managers of successful MNCs students will explore how MNCs are doing business in China. Key issues include:

- Strategies for interaction between headquarters and China operations
- Managing the expatriate career
- Localizing China operations and work force
- Developing and protecting intellectual property
- Managing government and public relations
- Dealing with ethics and corruption

Course Objectives

The course is designed explain how multinational corporations succeed in China. The course is intended to help prepare students for a lifetime of engagement with China as a manager of an MNC.

About the Professor

Paul Gillis, PhD CPA is a professor of practice. He joined the Guanghua School of Management in 2007 following a 28-year career as a partner in the international accounting firm PricewaterhouseCoopers where he served many of the world's most prominent MNCs. Detailed course plan (Outline of Units)

Topics will be arranged based on availability of outside speakers or breaking news.

Textbooks

A casebook will be distributed in the first class.

Rules students must follow

Students must abide by the codes of conduct of Peking University and Guanghua School of Management. In addition, detailed course-specific policies regarding participation, communication, and grading will be discussed in class.

Course Assessment

Component	Weight
Class participation	20%
Written case summaries	20%
Interview of MNC executive	20%
Participation in Technion Multi-Cultural Team Project	20%
Field research paper and presentation	20%
Total	100%

The primary method of instruction will be the case method, and students should be well prepared for class. A written case summary not to exceed four pages is required for each case and will be prepared by teams of up to four students. Requirements for these summaries will be explained in the first class.

Students will interview an executive with a MNC in China and write a two-page summary of the meeting and the most important issues facing his/her company in China. The paper is due on November 16.

The Technion Multi-Cultural Team Project will have students working on a multi-cultural, virtual team project with other MBA students from around the world. The project will be held from October 31 to November 28th and culminates in presentations at our last two classes.

A field research paper of no more than 1,500 words (about 5 double spaced pages) is required. The paper should provide background about one of these challenges, research extant literature on the issue, and make recommendations on major challenge that MNCs face in China. Final papers will be due by email to paulgillis@me.com by midnight on December 15. Grades will be reduced by 10% for each day the paper is late. Each student will present a brief summary of the paper in classes beginning about November 16.
